

27/12/2007

Shalom to all,

Real estate is a long and arduous business: the search for an apartment seems endless, exhausting and stressful – and during the process you learn more and more. If you do not have spare free time and you want to shorten the procedure, you may decide to use the services of a real estate agent.

I decided not to compromise, and if I was already spending so much money on a real estate agent, I wanted someone who was decent, honest and non-manipulative. I thought that there was “no such animal”. But then, I met Danny Moshe, an agent from R.P. Properties - Real Estate Investment House

In short, if you have already decided to use the services of a real estate agent, and you want a professional and reliable job, Danny is your man.

Good luck,

Maya